CTC approves CN's bid to abandon rail line

Commissioner 'sympathizes' with arguments, but rules line will never be 'economic'

by LEN PIZZEY
Echo Editor

Canadian National Railways has been granted permission to abandon the Lindsay/Haliburton subdivision and tear up the rails.

In a 19 page decision, Canada Transport Commission official J.B.G. Thomson ruled that the line was uneconomic, and that there was no likelihood the financial outlook would improve in the foreseeable future. He also rejected arguments that the abandonment would adversely affect future development in the area, and that the province should be given time to determine if the line is part of an essential rail network.

Thomson's decision was handed down more than a year after he presided at three days of hearings in Haliburton and Lindsay. It all but closed the door on any hopes that the line could be left in place, or used for a steam tourist train.

Throughout the decision, Thomson stressed that while he sympathized with arguments about the historical importance of the railway and its possible role as fuel efficient transportation for people and goods, he was bound by the requirements of the Railway Act in reaching his conclusions.

Key to the abandonment approval was CN's statement of actual losses over a five year period leading up to the application. While lawyers at the hearing sought to prove that the figures presented by CN were unrealistic, Thomson made it clear that the costing order which allows CN to apply a percentage of its total losses against the line was not open to question. The fact made it virtually certain that CN's application would be viewed as reasonable by the Railway Transport Committee of the CTC, whatever other facts about CN's lack of service and effort were brought to light.

CN's statement of 'actual losses' showed losses ranging from $181,843 in 1975 to $196,013 in 1979. Thomson ruled these were "substantial" for purposes of the abandonment application.

Lawyers representing various municipalities through which the line passes attempted at the hearing, to show that the line could show a profit in the future if mineral and other resources in the area are developed, and suggested that the line was vital to such development.

But Thomson was not persuaded.

"No intervenor has satisfied me that the Haliburton subdivision is profitable nor capable of being rendered profitable," he wrote in his decision.

"Although the potential for growth in this area can in no way be discounted, there was nothing of a concrete nature presented at the hearing to indicate that this line will ever become economic", Thomson ruled.

Attempts to demonstrate that the line was an essential alternative to inadequate highway systems serving the area also failed to find favour with the CTC commissioner.

"It would appear that, despite some fear of traffic problems and soft roadbeds, the highways in the area provide adequate access to alternative railway stations in the event that the Haliburton Subdivision were abandoned," Thomson wrote. "In addition, licensed highway carriers presently provide adequate alternative services for the area and it would appear that they will continue to do so."

Thomson stressed that in his view, trucking could adequately meet the area's needs even if other nearby rail lines are abandoned.

"The argument was also made that the rail mode would be the most economical and efficient in the long run, from an energy point of view. Although I have some sympathy for the latter view, I must offset against any potential saving of fuel (which of course is presently unknown) the present substantial losses of the line, which, if the line were to be retained, would be supported by the Canadian taxpayer."

"I am not convinced," Thomson said, "either by the potential referred to above in the economic area (wood chips and minerals) nor by the possibility of energy con-

Thomson also ruled out the possibility of any immediate economic effects from the abandonment, saying that he believed they would be minimal.

"As to the fear that abandonment of the railway will contribute to a general economic decline in the area, such fear, in my view, is unfounded," Thomson concluded "and the facts in no way indicate that this will occur."

One of the strongest arguments put forward at the hearing came from lawyer D.W. Burntack representing the Province of Ontario. Burntack told the hearing that tion could deny rail service to a significant portion of the province.

But the argument found little favour with Thomson.

"Although I have sympathy for this approach," he wrote, "I had before me no completed study of the type in question to consider, nor even the possibility of one. Even now, no definite study has been undertaken and the Committee has been asked to delay indefinitely its consideration of abandonments pending such a study. Unfortunately, the Railway Act does not permit me to act in such a fashion."

Thomson said that in his

Record number of enquiries handled

The majority of those who sought information came from Ontario

by SUE COOPER
Staff Reporter

Five thousand, five hundred more tourists passed through the information booth in Haliburton Village this year than last summer and most of them were from Ontario.

Before the long holiday week-end started Friday, Evelyn Perrin, who is in charge of the caboose located near Head Lake Park, said 13,124 visitors had stopped for information. The caboose is open week-ends from the Victoria Day week-end until the end of June and from Labour Day until Thanksgiving week-end and open daily during the two summer months.

Last year, including the visitors on Thanksgiving week-end, 7,654 tourists entered the caboose. Of that number Perrin said 7,191 were from Ontario. This year 12,271 Ontarians asked for information at the caboose.

"Ontario visitors are way up," Perrin said last Friday. Visitors from other areas have also increased but not in such a dramatic way, Perrin added.

"It seems like the Ontario people had more or less decided to stay because of the money and the gas situation," she explained.

Although many lodge and accommodation owners were helpful, Perrin said there were many times when there wasn't a room available between Lindsay and Bancroft.

At the log building housing the tourist information office in Cardiff, which is also operated by the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, 719 people stopped for a visit during the months of July and August. In 1980, 676 tourists asked for information and in 1979, 582 people asked for information.

It was estimated that 150 people had not signed the register in 1981, increasing the total. This information booth operated 71 hours per week from July 1 to September 7.

At the Chamber's main information office on highway 35 near Minden, 2,238 tourists stopped for guidance in July and August. Ontarians accounted for 2,101 of that number. Only a "guestimate" was available for the

Fake grave site shocks Gooderham

Residents of Gooderham were shocked to find a fresh gravesite complete with a tombstone in front of the post office last Sunday morning.

When police arrived at the scene, they discovered the four foot by eight foot area had been dug down to a depth of three feet. A marble tombstone had been placed at one end with "RIP" and the name of a local youth stenciled on the face. There were no other markings on the stone.

Further investigation revealed that the 'grave' was empty and that the youth

Federal acid rain committee releases report

by SUE COOPER
Staff Reporter

With the knowledge that acid rain is the most serious air pollution problem facing Canada and United States, the federal government's sub-committee on acid rain has made 38 recommendations to help solve the problems of acid precipitation.

In a 150 page report, Still Waters: The Chilling Reality of Acid Rain, the sub-committee states that the only real solution is to curb emissions at the source.

"The sub-committee on acid rain is unanimous in its conclusions that action must be taken now to control acid rain. The major sources of this pollutant are well-known," the report states. The technologies are available to drastically reduce the emissions of the atmospheric pollutants which cause acid rain. The time for immediate action is clear and unequivocal," the report adds.

The Sub-committee on Acid Rain of the Standing Committee on Fisheries and Forestry consisted of nine Members of Parliament from the three federal parties. Sitting on the committee were: chairman Ron Irwin, MP Sault Ste. Marie, vice chairman Pierre Giguere, MP Lac Saint-Jean, Derek Blackburn, MP Brant, Coline M. Campbell, MP South West Nova, Alexandre Cyr, MP Gaspé, Stan Darling, MP Parry Sound - Muskoka, The Honourable John A. Fraser, MP Vancouver South, Tom McMillan, MP Hillsborough, and Roger Simmons, MP Burin - St. George's.

After its initial appointment in July, 1980, the sub-committee soon realized that its November 1980 deadline was unrealistic. After two more time extensions the sub-committee released its final report last week.

During its investigations, the sub-committee held four public meetings, in Toronto, October 2 and 3, 1980, Montreal, January 26 and 27, Calgary, February 16, and Halifax, April 13.

Along with the hearings, the sub-committee was invited to visit Canadian corporations including INCO Ltd. and Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., in the Sudbury area, Suncor Inc. and Syncrude Canada Ltd. in Fort McMurray, Alberta, Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corporation Ltd., and Mines Noranda Ltd. in Noranda, Quebec. The sub-committee also travelled to Washington, D.C., London, England and Stockholm, Sweden for extensive discussions.

In addition, many briefs and letters were received from individuals and organizations which were not able to attend the hearings. Included was a submission from The Haliburton County Anti-Pollution Committee.

Acid rain, created by emissions of sulphur oxides and nitrogen oxides, is described in the report as the "most pervasive and feared environmental pollutant (that) threatens to destroy thousands of freshwater lakes and rivers, and has the potential to seriously damage forests, agricultural crops and soils and man-made materials...Acid rain itself may pose a significant, if indirect, threat to human health."

Comparatively, Canadian emissions of sulphur oxides annually are less than the United States. In the United States 26.9 million tonnes are produced while Canada emits only 4.8 million tonnes. (A metric tonne weighs 2,204.623 pounds.) Nitrogen oxide emissions are less with the United States emitting 20.2 million tonnes and Canada two million tonnes. The main source of sulphur oxides in the United States is the

Community involvement sought for residence

Though a success, the residence must be complimented by new program

by LEN PIZZEY
Echo Editor

More than two and a half years after it was established, Haliburton's community residence for the mentally retarded is surrounded by an atmosphere of change. New furniture has recently been purchased with a Cash for Life lottery grant. Additional money from the Ministry of Community and Social Services and the local mentally retarded association will pay for planned renovations to the downstairs recreation room. A new, handmade table sits in the dining room. Hand drawn posters and photos of residence activities decorate the walls, contributing to a relaxed, family atmosphere.

These physical changes are complimented by other changes which, though less visible, are no less important to the project's success.

Chief among these more subtle changes is the response of the community. When the concept of a residence for the mentally retarded in Haliburton was first proposed, it was met with skepticism, concern, and even resentment. Was there really a need for such a costly venture? Could it be financed without directly burdening local taxpayers? Could a suitable house be found, or would it have to be constructed? How would the community react to the increased visibility of retarded people who would live in the village on a day to day basis?

Those initial questions and concerns were borne partly of legitimate reservations and partly of a lack of understanding about the role of the residence and about the people who would benefit from it.

Initial obstacles were eventually overcome, and the project was established in the former nurses residence across from the Dysart arena. In the past two years, the community and the people who live and work in the residence have come to understand each other better. Wariness and distance have changed to acceptance and participation.

'Frustration' really worthwhile

Director Carol Smith and her husband Brian describe that change as the highlight of their more than two year involvement with the residence project. They say it has helped the association justify the time, effort and cost of operating the facility.

"It's made a lot of frustration really worthwhile," Carol says.

While the Smiths are anxious to have people help out and become involved in meeting the needs of the community's mentally handicapped citizens, "you can't push," Carol emphasizes. "It's really important that you work with whoever is expressing an interest out there."

Part of the challenge of operating the residence has been to gain the trust of parents of retarded adults. Some are reluctant to allow their offspring to take so big a step as moving away from home. Others are simply unsure what the residence is all about, and what it might do for their son or daughter.

"If I feel anything for the experience of the past two years, I feel for the parents," Carol says, "because they're not really sure who to go to, what to ask."

Often, she says, parents who have been coping with the demands of raising a mentally handicapped child to adulthood "need to talk. They need to have an opportunity to say whatever they feel like saying."

The Smiths say distance makes it hard to reach out to parents of the retarded. It isn't always possible for parents to bring their son or daughter into the village to take part in residence activities, or to work at ARC Industries. That means parents don't have the chance to see the residence and ARC Industries in action and it means some retarded adults are denied the learning opporelectric power industry contributing to two-thirds of the nation's total while non-ferrous smelters contribute 42 per cent of the total in Canada. Nitrogen oxides are created by the transportation sector, electric power utilities and industrial and commercial fuel combustion, the report states.

Although it is estimated the United States emits pollutants to create one-half of Canada's acid rain the report adds "the contribution from the United States is as high as 70 per cent in areas such as the sensitive Muskoka-Haliburton region of Ontario". Approximately three to four times as much sulphur dioxide pollution travels across the border from the United States to Canada than it moves in the opposite direction, the report says.

Since coal will probably be used more in the future as oil-fuelled industries convert the sub-committee suggested that steps be taken now to control pollutants at their source.

The following are the sub-committee's recommendations:

- Conversions of oil-fired power plants to coal should only qualify for grants under the National Energy Program's "Utility off-oil Fund" if the "best available emission control technology" for sulphur and nitrogen oxides is installed.

- All conversions of oil-fired plants to coal, whether financed by government grants or not, should also utilize the best emission control technology. Also all new plants built in Canada should have these control devices.

- Existing coal-fired plants should be retrofitted to reduce the sulphur oxide and nitrogen oxide emissions. The Lingan Generating Station operated by the Nova Scotia Power Corporation in Cape Breton and all of Ontario Hydro's coal-fired power plants should "be compelled" to install control devices.

- Since non-ferrous smelting creates the most sulphur dioxide emissions in Canada, the report suggests six major smelters in Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec "should significantly reduce sulphur dioxide emissions" within the next five years.

Although the sub-committee "is aware that costs will be high and that extensive modifications will be necessary", smelters will be expected to contain 80 per cent of the pollutant. Some smelters in Canada have already attained this level and the report stated most of the non-ferrous smelters "are profitable corporations". The sub-committee recommended a task force should investigate Noranda Mines Ltd. in Noranda, Quebec and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Ltd. in Flin Flon, Manitoba because they are economically marginal. With recommended reductions at six smelters the emissions of sulphur dioxide per day would be reduced from 6,420 tonnes to 1,767 tonnes.

- Canadian automobiles emit three times as much nitrogen oxide into the atmosphere as American cars per vehicle mile. Presently Canadian cars emit 3.1 gram per mile while U.S. standards only allow 1.0 gpm. The sub-committee recommended that standards at least be made as stringent as those in the U.S.

- To make the last recommendation easier to regulate, the committee recommended the Department of Environment be given legislative authority to regulate motor vehicle emissions instead of the federal Ministry of Transport.

Since testimony "expressing grave concern" about the possible effects of acid rain on forestry and agriculture resources was received at the hearing the sub-committee suggested intensive research should be continued to determine the exact effects. It was also recommended the Canadian Forestry Service should be reviewed to ensure adequate staff and funding are available to deal with the acid rain problem.

- With surprise and dismay the sub-committee realized no significant research had been conducted on the effects of acid rain precursors and ozone on agricultural crops and recommended such a study be conducted.

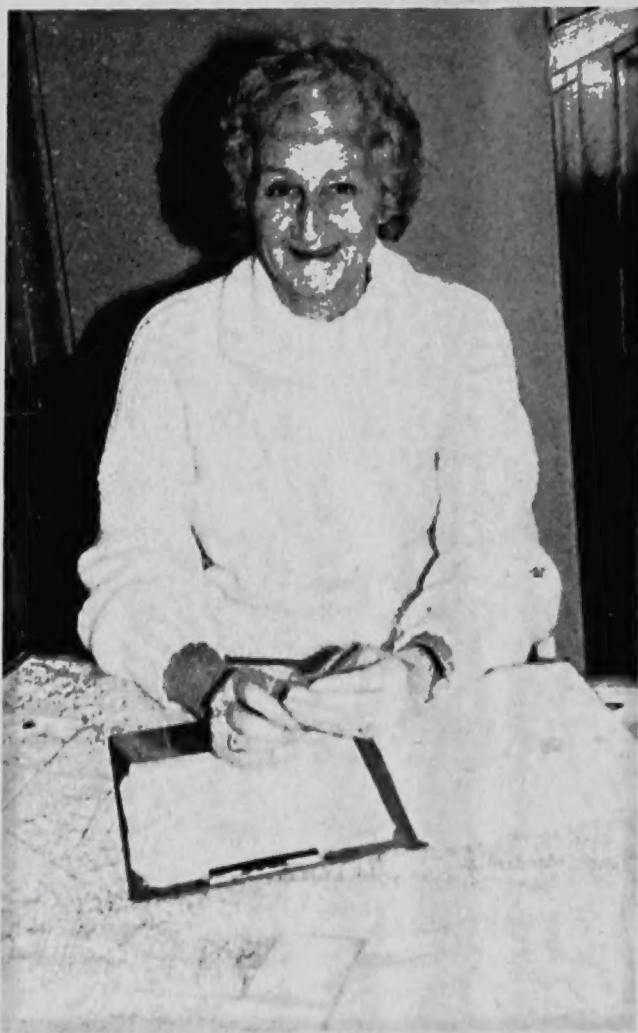

- The sub-committee refused to recommend liming of lakes on a broad basis but realized lime will raise the pH level of acidified water. "We recommend, however, that liming be considered only for selected water-bodies to restore and/or protect desirable fish populations. We emphasize that liming must not be regarded as a substitute for the control of acid rain - causing emissions at source," the report stated.

- With the consideration that acid rain might have indirect effects on health, the sub-committee recommended a research program to "identify and quantify" toxic metals in drinking water be given high priority.

- The sub-committee recommended research be conducted to determine the link between acid rain and mercury contamination of edible fish species and that monitoring programs should be initiated to find the degree of risk for populations whose diet relies on fish from areas sensitive to acid rain.

- It is recommended acid precipitation monitoring programs be reviewed to define tunities that can help make them more independent.

To improve communication between those involved in the residence project and the public at large, the mentally retarded association hopes to hold an open house soon, either at the residence or an as yet undetermined downtown location. The open house would give local people a chance to ask questions about the residence project and the responsibilities of the association, and to meet the people who work for and with the community's mentally retarded adults.

The Smiths believe expanded public awareness is a crucial step in shaping a better future for the mentally retarded. Both acknowledge that while the residence serves an important need, it is intended to function as an interim facility. The logical extension of the residence project is a supervised independent living program. But such a program will not be easy to establish, they agree, because jobs and apartment space, key elements in any independent living program, are in critically short supply in Haliburton. Ultimately, however, the question of the next step will have to be addressed not only by government agencies and the local association, but by the people of the community, whose cooperation will continue to be essential.

Further complications will arise when, because of illness or death parents who are now looking after their adult sons or daughters can no longer do so. At the moment, the residence is set up to house six residents on a full time basis, with one bed held in reserve for emergency situations. But if some of the people who now live in the home cannot move on to supervised independent living, it will not be possible to meet the needs of others waiting to take their places.

There will also be a need to provide services for lower functioning adults who are now being looked after by their parents, the Smiths say. At the moment the only option other than parental care is institutionalization, which means moving away from the community.

Despite these daunting future challenges lurking just around the corner, the Smiths are pleased with the way the program has developed in the last two and a half years.

The public has learned to accept the home's residents, and in some cases, individuals have gone out of their way to help. Claude and Gail Parish are a case in point, according to the Smiths. This past summer, the Parishes offered some of their land for a garden. Under the Parishes' patient supervision and guidance, the residents planted, weeded and harvested the garden, acquiring useful skills and having a good time to boot. Not incidentally, the garden also helped to cut down on the expense of running the home. Brian Smith estimates that the garden will result in a saving of $400 for potatoes alone this year.

The Parishes are one example of how the community has pitched in to help out the residence, but there are others. The annual Flowers of Hope campaign now underway continues to be supported by the public, generating revenue the association needs to meet its portion of the home's operating costs. Local businesses have also responded to the residence project, providing short term jobs that help the residents acquire new skills and confidence.

At the moment, the Smiths are hoping someone in the community will show interest in volunteering to work with individual residents on a speech program. A retired teacher would be ideal for the job, they say, but teaching experience is less important than a willingness to help out.

In the two and a half years that have passed since the residence was established, it has grown, evolved and improved. Whether it will continue that process in the years to come will depend on how much the community cares, and on how it meets the challenges that lay ahead.

Belgian girl enjoying stay in Haliburton

by SUE COOPER
Staff Reporter

After two months of residing in Canada, Laure Gilson is becoming more accustomed to the way of life.

Gilson, this year's Rotary International exchange student, arrived in Haliburton Village in the latter part of August. Since that time she has been living with Rotarian Ken Langdon's family and attending classes at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Although school dress requirements are similar to Belgium, Gilson said the school day is much easier in Canada. While she is studying English, Geography, History, Chemistry, Law and Physical Education here, Gilson said she was expected to "achieve" in 13 subjects in Belgium. Also in Canada, the school day is shorter as classes run from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Belgium. "It's a long day," she admits.

Having studied English during her school years in Belgium, Gilson said the language has given her little difficulty since arriving in the country.

"The accents are different because we learned proper English," she said.

One of the beauties that Gilson has been able to enjoy during her visit is the autumn scenery in the area. Having never seen the fall-coloured leaves she was pleasantly surprised.

"I've never seen before the bright colours on the trees," she added.

However, while she is enjoying the added beauty of the leaves, Gilson said she feels the area lacks the fancy pastries which are common in Belgium. And along with those pastries, the lack of home-made bread is noticeable too, she said.

"The bread is very different."

Although the area might lack the tasty pastries of Belgium, Gilson said she noticed almost all the businesses seemed to be air conditioned. "I saw everything had an air conditioner."

In Belgium, Gilson's family, including four

Laure Gilson

'The bread is very different'

brothers, reside in a small village. And although the modern architecture of Haliburton County is in contrast to the old building of Belgium, Gilson has found the area to her liking.

"So far, I think it's a very nice place."

CTC approves abandonment

lapsed since the hearing."

But Thomson did not rule out the possibility of a last minute reprieve for the line if the Province of Ontario intervenes. In his only positive statement about the potential of halting the abandonment, he was recommending, Thomson said "it is always open to the Government of Ontario to approach the Governor-in-Council for the type of freezing of a basic rail network which counsel (Burt-nick) referred to in his argument and which was ordered in Western Canada."

Commenting on arguments put forth at the hearing about the potential for growth of existing industries and the development of significant mineral mining operations, Thomson found that "the potential demonstrated both with respect to existing industries and ... possible mineral discoveries was not sufficiently concrete to justify retention of the line". He noted that there was "no guarantee" existing industries would use the line if it were brought back into service, and that no substantial amounts of minerals had been discovered or seemed likely to be discovered.

He also noted that while the province's lawyer had referred to a blanket mineral potential study for the region, "no such study, or progress thereon, has been submitted to the Committee."

The possibility of operating a steam tourist train on the line also figured in testimony at the hearing, but in the end, it had no effect on the CTC's ruling.

Thomson found that while the feasibility study submitted to the Committee was "thorough, well-written and interesting", there was some doubt as to whether any revenues generated by the operation of the train "could reduce the losses in question so as to render the line economic."

He also added that "it is not clear...that retention of the line is necessary to the implementation of the scheme in question", but gave no indication as to how the excursion train could operate once CN was given permission to tear up the rails.

On the matter of the washout north of Kinnmount which was the subject of conflicting evidence at the hearing, Thomson noted that CN's evidence "leaves much to be desired."

"In addition" he wrote, "(CN's) advertisement of its alternative trucking service at the washout point, as well as its attitude generally towards the pursuit of new markets in the area were, in my view, deficient." But he found that the washout had "no real effect on the already declining use of the railway".

Thomson noted that a more aggressive effort by CN "could have improved matters to some extent," but that trucking was more desirable to most shippers for cost and other reasons.

The commissioner ruled that even if CN's cost figures for rehabilitating the line, which were questioned at the hearing, were viewed as a maximum, rehabilitation costs "would still...be very high, and would not result in rendering the line economic."

Ontario Hydro's presentation at the hearing argued in favour of retaining the line for the transportation of large transformers to the Minden substation, but Thomson ruled that Hydro had not taken a definitive position on whether the Haliburton line was essential for that purpose or other, nearby lines could be used.

In conclusion, Thomson commented on arguments about the historical importance of rail service to the area.

"I must express my personal sympathy for this view," Thomson wrote. "I am aware of the history of the line and the close connection the railway has, especially, without excluding the other towns along the way, with Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Haliburton. Initiated with great interest the railway museum in Haliburton and the ... steam engine strategically placed at the entrance of the town. It has also not escaped me that 1981 is the centennial birthday of this line and that my decision may be seen as a cruelty to many persons in the area. However, such personal sympathy cannot, unfortunately justify retention of the line in question. Accordingly, I have concluded that CN's application for abandonment ought to be allowed..."

The Railway Transport Committee agreed with Thomson's findings in a decision dated September 28, 1981, and granted the abandonment 35 days after the ruling date.

It also ordered CN to advise the Committee "of the date upon which the removal of the tracks and other facilities has been completed."

Chamber abandons toll free line

Bell can't repair the problem, will refund the Chamber's money

The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce has voted to abandon its toll free telephone line because of unsatisfactory service.

From the outset, the line has not functioned satisfactorily, Chamber manager Bob Stinson said Tuesday. While incoming calls had sufficient volume at the receiving and switching device at the Chamber office, power was lost when the call was put through to local resorts.

Of the eleven original subscribers, only four indicated they were willing to continue to use the service despite its shortcomings.

Investigation by Bell Canada revealed that the problem lay not in the answering device at the Chamber office but in the Minden switching station. Because repair costs would be extremely high, Bell offered to refund all the money the Chamber has spent on the service to this point, Stinson said.

"We'd rather have the service," he said, but based on the fact that seven of the eleven subscribers were dissatisfied, the board of directors decided to accept Bell's offer and abandon the project.

The line is expected to be removed in a matter of days or weeks.

Tough laws needed to curb acid rain: committee

the need for improved technology. Methodology should be standardized in Canada's twelve monitoring stations and those stations should try to "harmonize" with those in the U.S.

Technology for monitoring the dry deposition of acidic substances should also be improved to "clarify this aspect of the total problem. The sub-committee suggested Alberta's government should not allow acid rain - causing emissions to increase over the present levels until the year 2000 and then they should be required to decrease. The projected expansion of the oil-sand operations and other developments "have the potential" to dramatically increase emissions in that province.

- Comprehensive National Emission Guidelines and compulsory National Emissions Standards should be developed to regulate sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxide sources.

- The sub-committee recommended the national Clean Air Act be utilized by the Minister of Environment Canada to regulate emissions in provincial jurisdictions.

- The Clean Air Act should permit interested parties to participate in the formulation of regulations in the act.

- The committee recommended "sufficiently high" fines be imposed to enforce any regulations; a tribunal be created to have exclusive jurisdiction over environmental law; the government should create and fund class action suits, private prosecutions and citizen civil suits.

- Existing environmental protection legislation would be more effective if staff resources in environmental departments were increased, court proceedings were accelerated and federal and provincial enforcement efforts were harmonized, the report stated.

- The sub-committee recommended regulatory alternatives setting total emission limits for a defined group of emission sources should be provided but should not be permitted to cause an overall increase in air pollution above desired levels.

- The public should be permitted to have access to all records and data pertaining to the discharge of contaminants into the Canadian environment.

- The sub-committee recommended that the transboundary air pollution control agreement with the U.S. be signed by the end of 1982 but that Canadian regulations should be improved now.

- Public interest groups, individual Canadians and all levels of Canadian governments should "utilize every avenue" to ensure emissions originating in the U.S. be substantially reduced.

NEW CANADA SAVINGS BONDS

19 1/2% FIRST YEAR

New Canada Savings Bonds earn 19 1/2% for the first year. For each of the remaining six years to maturity the rate has been set at a minimum of 10 1/2%. The Bonds will never yield less than this minimum rate.

Not only do Canada Savings Bonds offer you a good rate of return, they also offer a unique combination of features that make Canada Savings Bonds a strong, secure investment for today and tomorrow.

FLEXIBILITY FOR TOMORROW

Instant Cash. With new Canada Savings Bonds you're never locked in. If the need arises, they are easy to cash anytime at any authorized redemption agent. A Canada Savings Bond is as good as money in your pocket.

No Interest Rate Penalty. When the new Bonds are cashed anytime after December 31, 1981, there's no interest rate penalty. You will receive earned interest for each full month elapsed since November 1, 1981.

BACKED BY CANADA ITSELF

Canada Savings Bonds are backed by all of Canada's resources. When you buy Canada Savings Bonds you can be sure they are a safe, secure investment you can count on.

RETURN ON PAST SERIES INCREASED

The rate of return on all unmaturing Canada Savings Bonds has been increased to 19 1/2% for the year beginning November 1, 1981.

November 1, 1981. For each subsequent year until the Bonds mature the rate of return continues to be a minimum of 10 1/2%.

SERIES DATED BEFORE 1977

For Series dated before November 1, 1977 the higher return will be paid through an increase in the value of the cash bonus payable on the maturity date of the Bonds. The new bonus amount per $1,000 Bond of each Series is as follows:

| Series  | Maturity Date | Cash Bonus at Maturity |
|---------|---------------|------------------------|
| 1958-69 | Nov. 1, 1982  | $276.40               |
| 1972-73 | Nov. 1, 1984  | $378.40               |
| 1973-74 | Nov. 1, 1985  | $451.70               |
| 1974-75 | Nov. 1, 1983  | $212.90               |
| 1975-76 | Nov. 1, 1984  | $263.80               |
| 1976-77 | Nov. 1, 1985  | $327.00               |

SERIES DATED 1977 TO 1980

For the last four Series the higher rate will apply instead of the rate printed on the bond certificate. Each $1,000 Regular Interest Bond will pay $195.00 interest on November 1, 1982. For the year beginning November 1, 1981, Compound Interest Bonds will earn 19 1/2% simple interest and compound interest at 19 1/2% on all interest earned up to November 1, 1981. The growth of each $1,000 Compound Interest Bond for the year beginning November 1, 1981 is as follows:

| Series  | Value at Nov. 1, 1981 | Value at Nov. 1, 1982 |
|---------|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| 1977-78 | $1,471.93            | $1,758.96            |
| 1978-79 | $1,398.46            | $1,666.38            |
| 1979-80 | $1,277.40            | $1,526.50            |
| 1980-81 | $1,144.17            | $1,367.28            |

EASY TO BUY

New Canada Savings Bonds are easy to buy in amounts starting at $100 up to a total purchase limit of $15,000. And you have a choice of Bonds. There's the Regular Interest Bond for annual income and the Compound Interest Bond for savings growth.

ON SALE OCTOBER 13

The end of the line

After years of neglect, the end has finally come for the Lindsay/Haliburton rail line. The tracks, rusting from disuse, will be torn up and sold for scrap. Bridges which would have made the right-of-way useful for recreation, if not for trains, will be dismantled, dividing the 56 mile line into sections of empty and all but useless land. Hopes for steam tourist train, large scale mineral extraction, expanded lumbering and wood chip operations, and energy efficient transportation in a fuel conscious world, have been dashed because a piece of legislation, the Railway Act, allows no room for reason or intelligent speculation.

In a 19 page decision supporting CN's application to abandon the line, transport commissioner J.B.G. Thomson was at pains to point out that while he may have sympathized with those who argued that the line should be retained, the bare facts, shaped to fit the Railway Act, show that it has lost 'substantial' sums in the past, and would continue to do so in the future.

If there is a culprit in the abandonment fiasco, it is not Thomson, despite the fact that it was he who listened to the arguments and rendered the decision. The culprit is, in fact, the Act itself, and specifically the costing order which allows CN to apply a percentage of its losses on all its operations to the Lindsay/Haliburton subdivision. That costing order enabled CN to show 'actual losses' of more than $180,000 a year for the past five years, even though the company spent almost nothing on maintenance of the track and support facilities. The company's real losses on the line, as most people would understand them, may have been no more than a tenth of the 'actual losses' submitted to the Canada Transport Commission in the abandonment application, but the numbers could not be questioned under the Act. If CN mismanaged one of its hotels, paid too much for rolling stock, or lost business to other, more aggressive carriers, the results showed up in the 'actual losses' of the Lindsay/Haliburton line. As ridiculous as that may seem, it was a key factor in the success of CN's abandonment application.

The CTC's decision is a maddeningly myopic one. But it is not surprising. Anyone who has followed the machinations of Transport minister Jean Luc Pepin in the past few months will know by now that the federal government has no interest in railways, or in the people who depend on them. If the government can, without a hint of remorse, slash services used regularly by thousands of people from one end of the country to the other, it can hardly be expected to let good sense prevail on the matter of a small, insignificant and little used rail line between Lindsay and Haliburton.

Yet the issue reaches to the core of what the federal government has become - an insular juggernaut remorselessly crushing the hopes and plans of ordinary people in ordinary places far removed from the stone and glass sepulchers that entomb the federal bureaucracy. Why is it that the federal government cannot see the importance of rail lines to the nation's future? While the United States has mounted a concerted effort to revitalize its railways, Canada has decided that the railways which made nationhood possible are an anachronism, despite soaring energy costs that may all but isolate rural areas like Haliburton.

Realistically, there was no reason to hope that the CTC would order the line revitalized. But there was every reason to hope common sense would prevail over costing orders, and short term profit potential. The CTC has done the people of Victoria and Haliburton Counties a disservice in not ordering CN to retain the line and perform the small amount of maintenance required to preserve it for future use. The order could have been subject to review in five years or ten, giving the province a chance to identify an essential rail network, and local entrepreneurs an opportunity to more fully explore the possibility of a tourist train on the line.

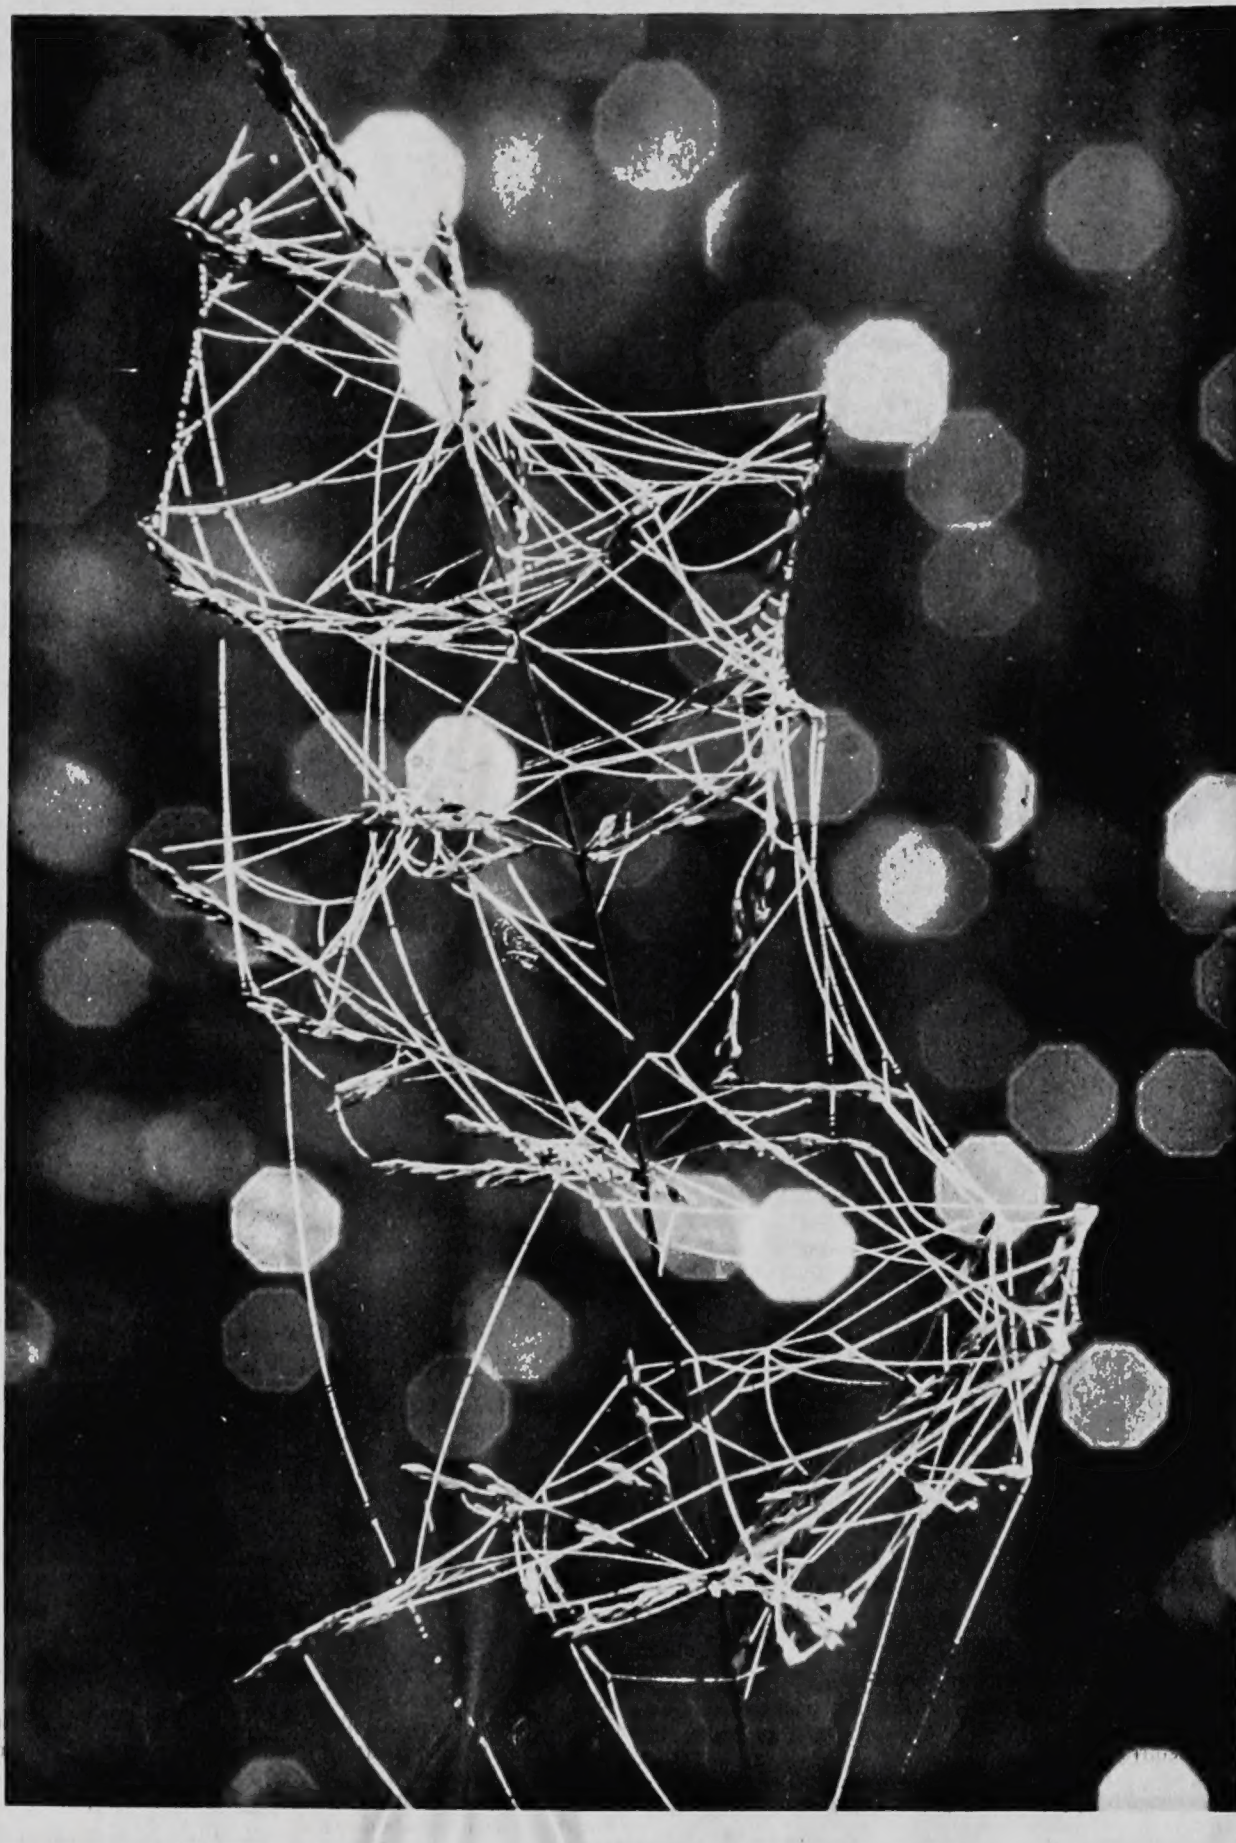

The CTC decision has closed the door to future use of the line. Once the rails have been ripped up, they will never be laid down again, no matter how expensive oil becomes, or how many minerals are found in this part of Ontario.

It is indeed a sad day for Haliburton, but more than that, it is a sad day for Canada, a country governed by self-serving and short-sighted politicians who don't care a fig for the future.

Editor's Notebook

by LEN PIZZEY

'frseeeeeeeffronnnnnng train somewhere whistling the strength those engines have in them like big giants and the water rolling all over and out of them all sides like the end of love's old sweet sonning the poor men that have to be out all night from their wives and families in those roaring engines'

James Joyce - 'Ulysses'

"Ever since childhood, when I lived within earshot of the Boston and Maine, I have seldom heard a train go by and not wished I was on it. Those whistles sang bewitchment: railways are irresistible bazaars, snaking along perfectly level no matter what the landscape, improving your mood with speed, and never upsetting your drink."

Paul Theroux - 'The Great Railway Bazaar'

"The world will run out of oil sometime in the next century, and the only way to move goods and people across the land probably will be by rail, Henry Sampson, editor of 'Jones World Railways', predicted today in a forward to the 16th edition of the reference book."

New York Daily News, February 23, 1974.

The fact that Canadian National Railways has been given permission to abandon the Lindsay/Haliburton subdivision will mean nothing to most people. It isn't national, or even provincial news. It's just a fact of living in the 1980's under a government that has other priorities, or no priorities, depending on your point of view. But for many people, the abandonment marks the final chapter in a long story, a story of development, adventure, bittersweet goodbyes on station platforms, vice regal visits, raucous trips to hockey games, the only link with 'civilization' in long and bitter winters.

The railway was already gone when I arrived in Haliburton. I never saw the rails gleam or felt the rumble of a locomotive as it idled along the lakeshore. But the abandonment has made me angry, not because it will effect what is already here, but because it will all but guarantee that very little else ever will be here.

The line was unprofitable, and local businesses did not use it very much in recent years, but it would have cost little to stop it from rusting away. It would have been easy for the CTC to tell CN that the tracks had to stay in place for a few years, as a hedge against future developments. That the CTC did not do so shows how little the government cares about the needs of rural Canada.

In a few months, all that will be left to remind us of the railway will be the locomotive across from Sam Slick Park and the Rails' End Gallery.

That will be small consolation if the observations of Henry Sampson quoted above prove true.

Acid rain report should be heeded now

Serendipity

by SUE COOPER

Stories of importance or extreme importance have a habit of landing on my desk on Monday or Tuesday mornings. At times it seems like a plot that might block any type of responsible reporting on the subject.

And so it was this week when the Sub-committee on Acid Rain's comprehensive report arrived. Still Waters: The Chilling Reality of Acid Rain, is the first report of its kind to point-blank address this most serious environmental problem of our time.

The 150 page report, complete with coloured photographs processed to appear as if they are being eaten away with acid, included an executive summary which provided a concise explanation of the entire document.

Included in the report are 38 recommendations designed to help reduce sulphur and nitrogen oxide emissions into the atmosphere and, in turn, decrease acid rain.

After glancing at the report it seems the committee was tolerant of the fact that industries are obviously destroying our environment and little is being done to stop this course of action. Similarly, when chairman of the sub-committee Ron Irwin, MP for Sault Ste. Marie was in Bracebridge three weeks ago he said Canada had many industries it could compel to clean up their emissions as well as trying to make the U.S. impose restrictions on its industries.

It is a scientific fact that acid rain is being transported from Ohio valley industries and dumped on the Haliburton - Muskoka region. But Irwin said at the joint meeting with U.S. government representatives that Canada would have more credibility if its industries were clean and then approached the U.S. to demand abatement policies.

I have to agree with this point of view. Although

As others see it

by Ron Reid - Federation of Ontario Naturalists

Late this spring, it appeared that Ontario's Environmental Assessment Act had been undermined substantially, as a result of the belated exemption of the Highway 404 extension north of Toronto. But a successful private prosecution on behalf of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists has turned the 404 decision into at least a partial victory of environmentalists.

The controversy began when a botanist became concerned about the rare plants in a wetland beside the proposed highway, and requested a hearing under the Environmental Assessment Act. When he found that construction had already begun, without the necessary environmental approval, his objections created such a stir that the Premier temporarily stopped construction. The next day the Premier announced that the civil servants involved had been rebuked, and the project would be exempted so it could continue.

We were convinced that the Ministry of Transportation and Communications were simply testing the Act, to see how much they could shortcut its requirements. Since the Ministry of Environment refused to prosecute, we decided to try. It was clear that the Minister James Snow and his deputy Harold Gilbert had been the two officials who made the decision to proceed illegally, so these were the two individuals named in the charges.

The biggest hurdle turned out to be a hearing to persuade the Justice of the Peace to actually issue the summons. Much to our surprise, the Ministry officials then decided to plead guilty at their first opportunity, thus avoiding a long and embarrassing trial. Even more to our surprise, the judge announced sentences of $3500 and $2800 for the pair, more than three times larger than the maximum fine we had requested.

Why did we prosecute, since the road construction continued anyway? Our motive was deterrence, as in most prosecutions where the damage can't be undone. We hope that the first conviction of an Ontario Cabinet Minister since 1923, and the stiff fines handed out for this first conviction under the Environmental Assessment Act, will send a message to all those in power that they ignore 'environmental legislation' at their peril. The 404 case should tell them all that there are citizen groups prepared to prosecute and courts willing to convict.

CONSTITUTION VIEW

It is hard to select a side in the question of whether or not the Trudeau Government should unilaterally repatriate the Canadian constitution.

In most respects, it boils down to a question of whether you favor a strong, centralized federal government or a dominion that succeeds or fails at slicing up federal and provincial powers.

The question is so moot, we feel even the Supreme Court of Canada had difficulty dealing with it beyond its basic legal ramifications.

The court's 7-2 vote that it would not be illegal for the constitution to come home without provincial accord was tinged with the subtle opinion that such a step could be unwise.

Certainly, the question is a complicated one.

But when considering it, one must look at what is good for the whole country and what should be good for the provinces.

Philosophically, at least, it would be apparent that a strong, centralized government is the kind of national administration that makes a country strong.

Yet, we wonder if it is too late for this country to have a strong, centralized government, especially when the provinces are already used to a long list of powers they do not want to give up.

On the pro-national side of the coin, Alberta's attitude towards its abundance of fuel makes one tend to support a strong, central government. It still smarts that the American money in one of our provinces is able to succeed as impetus for holding the rest of the country to ransom.

There are those who feel foisting a constitution on the provinces will serve to divide us, but it is a legitimate question to wonder if we are not divided already.

If we are indeed divided, then the Trudeau Government has nothing to lose in bringing back the constitution in the hopes that it joins us together.

There can be no doubt that current economic issues in the world demand that a strong federal government control certain natural resources and commodities.

In the cases of energy, minerals, steel production, food and other commodities, a strong federal government could centralize a campaign to make us self-sufficient.

In the past, a disjointed Canada has had no impetus to radically change its tariff laws to strengthen our agricultural industry and put our manufacturing industry into perspective.

Granted the provinces should have some say and some power in the fate of this country, but they should not be able to block our progress for political reasons that are selfish and regional.

If they maintain that insolationist attitude, surely they will divide us.

The constitutional battle is puzzling, but important. It would appear, however, that some provinces are more concerned with their own backyards than they are with the upkeep of the community of Canada as a whole.

Pic of the Past

The 1981-82 Junior "C" hockey schedule is underway and the Haliburton Huskies are looking for big things to happen this season. As you can see this photo of the Huskies of yesteryear takes us back quite a number of years when the team was without a doubt the best in Victoria and Haliburton. The team is shown in front of the old Haliburton Arena showing off the many trophies

Bill Smiley

Teachers have 20 days of sick leave (paid) due to them every year. That's fair enough. At present, I have 316 days, plus 20 for the coming year, built up. Figure it out for yourself. I haven't missed many days on the job and some of those were funerals of relatives and such. But how can a man show up for work as a member of the "walking wounded": abrasions on forehead, black right eye and scraped cheekbone, nose looking as though the rats had been at it, and right leg almost completely crippled, though nothing broken? Well, he can't. And yesterday was the first time in my teaching career when I wasn't ill, but stayed home. I went back today with a few flesh-colored pieces of tape and a bad limp, arousing the curiosity of staff and students alike.

Strangely enough, I had been telling a bright Grade 11 class just the other day about the gullibility of students. You may remember, I'd had a very minor lesion on my big nose removed. The nurse said, "This is a big bandage." I retorted, "This is a big nose." It was all done at the hospital before 9 a.m., and I was on the job.

A lad in one of my classes asked, with concern, "What happened to your nose, sir?" I told him with a very straight face that a hyena had escaped from a nearby zoo, poked in one of my cellar windows, and sneaking up to the bedroom, had bitten off my nose. And that's why I'd been to hospital, to have an artificial nose implanted.

"Oh, that's too bad, sir," he'd said, in all sincerity. Well, in all sincerity, I wish the story had been true. For about the eighth time in my career, my nose looks like a transplant from a guy who has narrowly escaped his life, after being shot through the nose, instead of the brain.

But this Grade 11 class the other day didn't say a word, though their looks were eloquent. They didn't want to be gullible, and have me tell them that my wife did it, or I had a fight with the town cop, or I crashed while glider-flying.

I wish I'd been born with a snub nose. These people, even though they are always sticking their snubs into other peoples' business, never seem to get them hurt. I mind my own business, and keep getting my nose broken or badly cut, or a candidate for cancer.

Once again, the damage resulted from shopping. One time I came in with two bags of groceries, slipped off my shoes at the door, went into the freshly waxed kitchen, took a kick at the cat, slipped and fell, nose-on, against the kitchen counter. No eggs broken, just the nose.

This time, I went off with a reasonable shopping list, but got into the impulse-buying game, and arrived home with five of those white plastic shopping bags, loaded to the gunnels (the bags).

Cunningly, I thought, "Well, I can handle three on one trip and go back for the other two and still have one hand free to slam the trunk door of the car."

Unfortunately, my cunning neglected the fact that I was wearing my new arch support, total cost $85, and that it was hurting me like a brand new set of false teeth. I was limping heavily on the right.

I arrived at the pile of rocks just outside our back door. Sometimes we call it the rock garden, at other times the rock patio. Every year we plant to turn it into something exotic. But it's still just a pile of rocks, each and everyone with sharp edges. Many a chunk I've taken off my shin by veering a little to the right.

To make a long story short, I caught my right, limping foot on a heave in the sidewalk, and tumbled straight into the rock pile. Loyal to the end, I clung to the groceries. In my right hand were two bags, obviously loaded with canned goods. The one bag in my left hand contained the toilet tissue and the Kleenex. I went into the rock pile like a badly ballasted ship hitting a reef. I could have been killed. My nose saved me. It took the initial impact before I skidded onto my cheekbone and forehead.

Bloody but unbowed, I gathered the groceries (not an egg busted, not a quart of milk spilled) staggered into the kitchen, scattering blood and groceries everywhere.

Lots of people would have been rushed to emergency and sewed and cauterized and other wise tortured. I never do that. I use my mother's old remedies. Staunch the blood with a cloth or something, make sure you haven't lost an eye, and then sock the ice-water to it.

In my mother's day, hot and cold water were the pain-killers and the blood stoppers. We didn't have ice-cubes then, but we had a chunk of ice in the ice-box. And we needed it. I was always coming home with a cut foot that should have had six stitches, or a cut head where a kid had hit me with a stone, or a sprained ankle from football.

I must admit that I add a little modern extra. I put the ice-cubes in a towel until the bleeding stops or is merely oozing. Then I take them out, wash off any superfluous blood, put them in a glass, and pour some medicine over them, just in case of shock. If my mother could see me doing this last manoeuvre, she'd have gone into shock. She was TI.

And that's how I got my banged-up face. But my nose saved though worse.

Thoughts on the death of a railroad

From the Chamber

by Bob Stinson

When word came this week that our local Rail Line from Lindsay to Haliburton was to be permanently abandoned it was certainly no surprise to many but all the same a very real disappointment. When the hearing took place over a year ago there was quite a little optimism shown, particularly in light of the revelations that were made about how the C.N.R. had handled their end of the present agreement. The bottom line however is that "the branch line is uneconomic, and likely to continue to be uneconomic." The C.N.R. received permission to take up and dispose of the tracks and equipment and get a light rap on the knuckles because "it's attitude generally towards pursuit of new markets in the area were, in my view (the commissioner), deficient." That is certainly an understatement.

One hope for not only retaining the line but as a potential Tourist Attraction was the proposed Steam Excursion Train. In reference to this factor the commissioner in his summary makes a very puzzling statement. He says "It is not clear to me that retention of the line is necessary for the implementation of the scheme in question." How this proposed train could operate without a track is beyond us.

INWATS LINE DISCONTINUED

It is with considerable regret that the Chamber faced the decision to discontinue the use of the Inwats telephone service that began last March.

The Inwats phone number provided toll-free convenience to potential visitors from anywhere in Ontario to call the Chamber office. In order to pay for the cost of this service the Chamber had equipment installed allowing us to forward calls to members who subscribed to the service thereby allowing them to advertise a toll-free line also.

This is where the problem came in, as reception

Queen's Park Report

by MPP John Eukins

This past summer, the Government was told by its own advisory committee that it must either dramatically increase university funding or face the closure of several universities and the drastic curtailment of programmes at several other institutions.

According to the committee, the underlying problem is the Government's failure to provide adequate funding for universities. For example, in 1977 the Province paid 18 per cent of the cost of university programmes and support services. This year, the Province will pay only 5 per cent, with the Federal Government and student tuition paying the rest.

The current crisis in university funding is proving to be the main topic of discussion as Liberal Colleges and Universities Critic Bill Wrye tours eight university campuses this fall. The M.P.P. for Windsor-Sandwich is meeting with university presidents, student council leaders, students and faculty. At each stop on his tour, he is accompanied by local Liberal M.P.s.

Bill Wrye actually began his tour on September 25, in his home riding at the University of Windsor, and to date he has also visited Trent University in Peterborough - on September 28, and Carleton University in Ottawa - on October 5.

On October 14, he will visit Waterloo and Wilfrid Laurier Universities in the Kitchener area. October 16, he will visit Laurentian in Sudbury, and October 26 he will be at Brock University in St. Catharines. York University in Toronto will also be included in the tour, although the actual date of this visit is not yet finalized.

At each stop on the tour to date, it has been abundantly clear that students and faculty alike are very worried indeed about the current funding situation. All agree that the "crunch" will come in the next financial year.

All three universities visited so far are running at a deficit and it is expected that the other universities on the tour will have similar tales to tell. We can only hope that Government will take effective action in this connection rather than compel some of them to go into receivership if the funding they receive is substantially less than the rate of inflation.

Redmen pulling down IE Weldon opponent

Redmen hold 4 and 0 record

by LEN PIZZEY
Echo Editor

Only one team remains between the Haliburton high school Redmen football team and the Kawartha West championship, I.E. Weldon secondary school from Lindsay has an identical 4 and 0 record going into a season ending home and home series against the Redmen, guaranteeing that the teams will meet for the league championship no matter what the outcome of the next two games.

The Redmen stretched their undefeated streak to four games last Thursday when they played host to LCVI. It proved to be a low scoring affair on a cold and windy day, but the Redmen were never in trouble at any time in the match.

In the first quarter, LCVI had the wind advantage but couldn't do much with it as the Redmen's solid defense neutralized the Lindsay team's attack.

The closest call of the quarter came when Haliburton fumbled an LCVI punt on the 20 yard line and Lindsay recovered. But the Redmen stopped them cold, and the quarter ended scoreless.

Midway through the second quarter, Ron Yake scrambled 35 yards on a reverse to set up a Redmen major by Scott Arbuthnot, who powered the final three yards from scrimmage.

Davies successful convert attempt made it 7-0 in favour of the Redmen.

With 28 seconds left in the half, the Redmen found themselves in possession of the ball in scoring range.

After a time out to plan strategy, the Redmen lined up in punt formation and Tim Davies booted the ball 40 yards through the end zone for a single point to make it 8-0.

In the third quarter, LCVI had the wind advantage but were unable to generate much offense, and there was no change in the score.

The fourth quarter gave Haliburton the wind, but they were unable to click until the final minutes, when Tim Davies booted another that gave the Redmen 9-0 victory.

The win came despite the fact that the Redmen were lacking the services of four key players.

Offensively Tim Davies called a strong game from the quarterback position, and his kicking added much to the team's scoring punch.

Ron Yake, playing from the slotback position, gained more than 100 yards for the Redmen.

Defensively, Rich Choy came up with another solid game, racking up several unassisted tackles and playing a key role in many of the Red-men's stops. Steve Smith and Kelly Mitchell were also solid on defense, playing in new positions.

The Redmen will meet I.E. Weldon this Thursday in Lindsay for the first game of their home and home series, and will be back in Haliburton next Friday, October 23, for

Huskies streak stops at two

Haliburton out-shot Oro but goalie was too quick

by LEN PIZZEY
Echo Editor

The Haliburton Huskies had their season opening winning streak stopped at two Friday night when they failed to contain Oro 77's on the road. But in Saturday night's home game against the Gravenhurst Indians, the Huskies took the lead in the first period and never looked back, coming up with their third win in four starts.

Power plays told the tale in Friday night's match against Oro, with five of the game's seven goals coming while the scoring team had a man advantage.

The Huskies were stymied by a hot goal tender in the Oro nets throughout much of a first period in which they outshot their opponents 16-7. But the pressure paid off at the 17:37 mark when Scott Rae connected on a passing play from Scott Arbuthnot and Dean Curry to give the Huskies a 1-0 lead. The goal came on a power play.

With just 12 seconds left to play in the game and the Huskies shorthanded, Oro drove one past Colin Newell in the Huskies net to tie the game.

In the second period the Huskies again used a man advantage to pressure Oro early, and it paid off, as Scott Rae got his second of the game at 3:29. Assisting on the play were Arbuthnot and Rob Abbs.

From that point in the game, Oro began to click, notching the tying marker at 5:48 while the Huskies had the advantage, and taking the lead at 9:17 on a power play.

Colin Newell had to handle 16 shots in the Huskies net during the period, while the Oro netminder was pressured with 14 shots.

The third period proved a frustrating 20 minutes for the Huskies, who were unable to score despite registering 15 shots against the Oro net.

At 12:56, on a power play, Oro connected again to make it 4-2 and at 13:12, they notched their fifth and final goal of the game.

For the Huskies it was a case of being beaten by a goalie who managed to neutralize the best they could hand out. The Oro netminder came up with 45 saves in the game, while Colin Newell handled 32 shots in the Huskies nets.

Saturday night, before a hometown crowd, the Huskies fared better, taking the lead early and never relinquishing it despite a determined effort by the visiting Gravenhurst Indians.

Ed Davis wasted no time in giving the fans something to cheer about. Just 10 seconds after the opening faceoff Davis drove the puck into the Gravenhurst mesh to give the Huskies the advantage.

At the halfway point in the period the Huskies scored two more as Tim Davies connected from Cory Walker and Dean Curry at 9:21 and Darrin MacInnes netted one with help from Gary Harrison.

The second period began as the first had, with a goal just seconds after the initial faceoff. This time it was Tim Davies who connected on a powerplay at the 15 second mark, assisted by Ron Yake and Scott Rae.

Still on the power play, the Huskies stretched their lead to five goals when Ed Davis got his second of the game, a minute into the period. Assisting on the play were Scott Arbuthnot and Rae.

Gravenhurst fought back in the rest of the period and managed to spoil Newell's attempt at a shutout with goals at 10:30 and 19:04.

In the third period the Huskies again took a five goal lead, when Roger Hicks found the mark, assisted by Davies and Curry at 3:45.

Momentum switched to Gravenhurst shortly before the half way point in the period and they made it count, netting three goals in two minutes, two of them on a power play.

But the Huskies managed to contain the drive at three, and tightened up for the rest of the period, hanging on to their one goal advantage.

The win put the Huskies record at three and one and kept their home game winning streak intact.

Teams split soccer games

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School's soccer teams continue to put up some strong competition in Kawartha West league play.

The senior team, competing in the league for the first time this year, dropped a hard fought 3-2 decision to Fenelon Falls last Wednesday.

The Junior team also came close, but wound up on the low end of an identical 3-2 score in last Wednesday's action.

Flo Henderson leads team to two point lead in series

In Wednesday afternoon mixed league bowling last week, Wendy Kirkpatrick bowled a 271 single and a 593 triple while Flo Henderson with a 593 triple led the Sting Rays to a two point lead in the first series with 15 points.

The Sky Larks maintain second place with 13 points. The Miss Fits are close behind in third place with 12 points.

The Thunder Birds lost two games and total pins to the Sting Rays keeping them in fourth place with nine points.

Happy Gang News

By Watson Anderson

All the plants potted and left in the beds to adjust to the pots are now in and were in excellent shape. Most have been disposed of for token amounts simply because we have no place for the display of many house plants. Most were geraniums, red, pink and white, flowering maples, impatiens, fuchsias and heliotrope.

Monday's choir turned out in full attendance; the leader-Melissa Stevens, pianist Jan Shipley, members, Rev. Wallace Allison, Peggy Henderson, Alice Hartle, Nina Pussey, Edgar Long, Beryl Morrow, Jack Pollard, Hazel Parish, Christina McCrae, Flossie Burk, Maude Weston, Annie Silver, Della Roberts, Berkeley Feir, Vera Griffin and Shirley Rydman. R.N. It is a very good choir specializing for the time being in hymns. On asking them when they expect to be going on tour, the answer was that they are not sure. It will be something for us to look forward to.

In the afternoon in preparation for the coming Christmas bazaar the ladies - Hazel Parish, Flossie Burk, Sylvia Gilbert, Noreen Stevens, Maude Weston and Lila Simmons in the tutelage of Ivy Shaw and a helper Kathy Cary - spent some time stuffing kapoc into mens' ties resulting in a gradual taper of a round item that could be mistaken for a snake. That was the intent to fashion a snake, eyes and slick red tongue. Several will be on display and sale there. We keep needing money, but who doesn't.

We welcomed June Devolin Tuesday morning to lead us in the bible study. This study was centred around Mathew ch. 14 in which disciple Peter walked on water until faith vanished and he needed the help of Jesus to be saved. The purpose of this study was to exemplify faith. That is what Christianity is about, the faith that Christians have in Jesus, that he can do wonders for us if we only have faith.

We had volunteer helpers for the Tuesday's bingo - Bernice Ross and Helen Archer. They scrutinized the plays, helping mostly to be sure that no plays were missed. Ray Smith called throughout, giving us a good game. Everybody won.

In the evening Nancy Picard, accordion, and Peggy Neville, voice gave us a nice session of various popular songs to the great enjoyment of the Happy Gang. We are happy to know that they enjoy entertaining as we do as an audience. Thanks again ladies!

When the music was over two tables for euchre were set up and guests from the residence came over to play with us. Murry McCall, son of Lola McCall who lives here with us and Barry Stronberg played. Helen Bobinski came to spend the evening with Alice Hartle who introduced her residents. We are looking forward to these games continuing every Tuesday night.

Wednesday was our day to meet with other county seniors to have our noon meal at Locarno on the Lake and at the same time mark the first anniversary of the start of this idea. Owner driver volunteer Bob Wilson took Flossie Burk and Edgar Long; Marion Currie took Hazel Parish and Norman Titus; Harry and Pat Woolley took Jack Pollard and Watson Anderson; Les Hughes took Harold Austin and Elsie Porter; Bob Wilkinson took Christina McCrae and Peggy Henderson; Betty Strang took Kay Walker and Ivy Shaw took Shirley Frost and Beryl Morrow. A side line occurred when Isobel Moody took her mother Ritzpah Elstone, age 95 years, the lone nonagenarian, a fact by no means overlooked by the other guests. It was roast turkey, gravy and naturally the traditional tasty dressing and cranberry sauce that now come in those neat little patties, mashed potatoes of course with unlimited tea or delicious coffee. Most marvelous was the dessert of pumpkin pie. After an anniversary sing song to the accompaniment of accordionist Nancy Picard we returned as we came. This treat is to be repeated in two weeks.

We toyed with the idea of gathering a few bagfuls of leaves this year to compost into the soil but it seems that in a very short time the soil will be frozen solid and not accessible until spring. It is a good way of fertilizing and we believe it works better than other methods we have used including commercial fertilizer and involves more shovel work. It is composting in a way that the compost material needs no spreading because it is already there where it is needed. Plants within a radius of four feet seem to greatly benefit.

Thursday afternoon the Happy Gang went into a huddle to try to come up with ideas on how to generate some cash to pay for some of the activities we have engaged in in the past. It turned out to be the most efficient gag ever, putting us back to square one where we started. The wood working plan we had a short time ago that did generate revenue is now pretty well kaput. The plants and flowers bring in not much more than break even due in large measure to a lack of sales staff. Quilts pay pretty well but not many Happy Gang ladies are quilters. So the duddle is still in limbo.

The Rev. Stan Rukin, Pastor of the Full Gospel Light-house in Haliburton conducted the Friday morning devotional period and his wife Geraldine was the pianist. The theme was 'The Lord's Prayer' taken from Mathew ch. 6. It makes it much simpler to have it explained as he did. Pastor Rukin was counselling a group of children when he was reminded of us so forthrightly he came right over. The Happy Gang are happy to have made the acquaintance of these servants of the Lord.

In the afternoon we had three movies: 1. 'Taffy', a reminder to us of the coming maple syrup season, showing the various stages of harvesting the sweets of the maple, the national tree and one that it is predicted will dominate all others within the next hundred years, and the tree that has the prettiest leaves at this time of year. The film showed the tapping, the spiling, the gathering and the boiling of the sap to make the maple syrup. 2. 'Gannet Island' an island 'full' of sea birds. 3. 'Salmon Run and Bears Abound', simply showing how bears manage a salmon run.

There is so much that happens each week at this place we hardly take time to say table grace unless of course Mr. Brown is here, he says the blessing nice and clear. Let's for a moment dwell on spiritual things. Come to the Chapel and hear the fine messages our Minister brings. We who are nearing sunset years and have trouble changing gears look to brighter things above where all is peace and love. Now lets look to a lighter vein and talk of those who entertain, of all the ones who come to this home there is none better than Cooper and Owens with Cathy on the piano and Earl on the fiddle. It alamaund left all fall to the middle. Then there's our ladies, those hard working dames who have a quilt set up in their nice quilting frames. They hope to raffle some fine winters day. This is the time they will sure make it pay. Then there's the ladies who bring in our lunch and they are always a real happy bunch. This week it was the ladies from Kimmount, United. Whatever they bring we are always delighted. Now its sing song time at Hyland Crest, we always have the very best. This week with Fred Ballard on the organ and Grace Cobourn lead the singing. When we get a lovely piece we know we set the rafters swinging. There is lots more happens here at the Crest, I will try next week to tell you the rest.

I forgot to tell about the Robertson sisters at fun and fitness, they do some real twisters.

Until next week.

Public schools hold readathon

Many local public school students will take part in a nation wide readathon over the next few weeks to raise funds for multiple sclerosis research.

Students who participate will read as many books as they choose over the duration of the readathon, and will seek sponsorship from parents, relatives, friends and neighbours for each book completed.

The readathon will begin with an assembly in which youngsters learn something about M.S., a neurological disorder that afflicts an estimated 35,000 Canadians.

The program gets underway October 16 and continues throughout the month.

Gooderham News

by Mary Hadley

The South Algonquin Kinsmen Club have pledged $2000 to the building fund of the Glamorgan Community Centre. Last Wednesday evening, members of the club were present when a donation of $500 was presented and accepted by the reeve Ken Maguire. This club has been very helpful in various communities, having placed the Participark in Gooderham a few years ago. These gifts are much appreciated. We wish you Kinsmen well in your future endeavours.

We are very pleased to report that Ken Webster has returned to his home from hospital in North Bay. Best wishes for continued improvement. Ken, with no more asthmatic bouts. Mrs. Robertson, of Toronto, is visiting her daughter, Dorothy.

Much interest is created around Wolf Lake over the future of a young loon that was born late in the season. All hope it will mature enough to fly south with the older birds when they migrate.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kendall of Bracebridge, with their children, Laura and Robbie, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Barr and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kendall for Thanksgiving.

Misses Clara Newstead and Margaret Hopkinson were hostesses for Thanksgiving dinner at their cottage on Pine Lake. They then closed up for the season to return to their home in Toronto. We look forward to their return in the spring.

Mrs. Mabel Winder has left for Florida where she will spend the winter months. Have a happy, healthful winter, Mabel!

September 29, St. Patrick's Euchre party results: ladies' high: Clara Watson; ladies' low: Verlie Young; men's high: Bill Wilson; men's low: Ada Turrell; lone hands: Bill Wilson. There were 10.5 tables.

Sympathy is extended to Verla, family and friends of Bill Schell, who passed away at his home in Cobocok, Friday evening, October 2.

I hope all you ill folks are well soon: Helen Graham, Father Brooks, Mary Gillis, Tom to name a few.

Happy birthday to Jessie Cameron on Saturday, October 3.

Joyce Hills was another bad cold sufferer this past week. The recent weather has been a contributing factor I guess.

Shelagh Graham of Norland underwent surgery last Monday and Samantha Fryer, Shelagh's next door neighbour underwent the same surgery the next day. That's togetherness! I hope you girls are back to your frisky selves soon!

The results of that lob ball tournament when our local softball players were driven by Winebago to Oakwood a couple of weeks back have turned up. Oakwood took the overall prize but Kinmount did win the consolation prize and each player received a beautiful bronze pendant hanging on a red, white and blue striped ribbon. The pen-dant itself is inscribed on the back "Oakwood Invitational Consul 1981" and on the front is a baseball player up to bat for the men and the ladies medal has a close up bust of a lady player at bat. They're very impressive and congratulations to all you winners.

Elly and Mack Roach of Phoenix, Arizona are guests for a few days over Thanksgiving, of Margaret and Sam Telford at their Kinmount home.

Bill and I enjoyed a very short "good-bye" visit with our neighbours Joan and Ken Hyams and their English guests, Mr. and Mrs. Breeds who were leaving for home on Thursday morning, October 8. They said they'd enjoyed their stay and were leaving with mixed feelings, naturally wanting to be home but sad to leave such good friends. Come back soon folks! Bon voyage; it was a pleasure having met you!

Mary Gillis is now home from hospital and I'm sure, would appreciate a phone call to break her day.

Win Wilson spent a few days with her sister-in-law, Jean, at Pickering recently but is now home. Win's brother, Bob Hollobon is a patient in Ajax hospital after taking ill while working at the new family home being built on Hwy. 519 out of Kinmount. Get well soon, Bob.

Congratulations to Louise

Irondale News

September, in the beautiful highlands of Haliburton County, had, as always, a certain breathless quality, as we waited for the glory of the colours. It came in patches of crimson, splashed over the hills, or in little swamps, where the still waters doubled the eye-filling beauty. Here in Irondale, we have watched the hills begin their glow. We have heard the honking of geese, flying so high it is hard to spot them. We have said "good-bye" to swimming, fishing and boating for another year and have said "au revoir" to many summer visitors and friends. School has begun again, after a long, lazy summer holiday. The chatter and laughter of children, is now hardly heard, as those of school age leave the community by bus before 8 a.m. and do not return until nearly 5 p.m. The days are beginning to shorten and the twilight draws in quickly. Autumn is here.

Kinmount Fall Fair, as usual, was an event much anticipated. It brought Irondale residents, who placed entries, much satisfaction. Esther Graham was an outstanding exhibitor. She received many prizes as follows: best overall quilt, baby's booties and bonnet, men's sweater/pullover and novelty cushion. All took a first prize; baby's jacket and crocheted on finished article took second prizes. In his first time as an exhibitor at Kinmount Fall Fair, Gordon Kennedy won first prize for his Indian head done in crewel work. Congratulations to both Esther and Gordon.

Four women from the community have decided to take a ceramic course in Haliburton. At present all are enjoying their day's outing while learning a new craft. Hopefully, the finished articles will be things of beauty.

For those who shop at the Hancock store in Irondale, please note the following change in closing time. The store, usually closed Wednesday afternoon except through the summer months, will close Tuesday at 12 noon and stay open all day Wednesday. This is until further notice.

Cora Kennedy is introducing more crafts to the ladies through her stitchery parties. We attended her first and were very impressed with the variety and quality of the things offered. If you enjoy stitching or latch hook rugging, plan to attend one of these parties.

Many of our community members have had to make trips to the hospitals. Among them Jack Eikens, Fred Simmons and Grace Simmons. Also the Rev. Reginald Brooks, our rector, has been in hospital at Peterborough Civic for surgery. We hope all will soon be well and their days of strain and pain will result in good health.

September is a wonderful time to visit Irondale, as Marjorie McRae, from Summerside P.E.I. found out. Marjorie was here to witness the glory of the swamps in crimson and gold and enjoy the clear, crisp air of autumn, while she visited her aunt, Bee Hancock. I trust she took some of our flames to colour her leaves with her P.E.I. to show her friends and patients at the hospital where she is a nurse.

It is with sorrow that we record the passing of a very dear aunt, Mrs. Margaret Fice. She visited Irondale on several occasions and always brought a feeling of joy with her.

Wilberforce News

by Winnie Schofield

Members of the ACW held their first fall meeting on October 7 and with the welcome aid of visiting ladies were able to complete a quilt that afternoon. A second quilt was tied. A discussion concerning the next rummage sale resulted in a plan to hold three sales on three consecutive Saturdays with the first taking place October 17.

The Wilberforce Mineral and Gem Club met in the Library on Wednesday. During the business section of the evening it was agreed by all members present that monthly meetings give way to news bulletins containing information of interest to club members. The present executive will continue in office and club fees will remain the same for the present. President Harry Ablett displayed some fascinating mineral samples from many parts of the world. All agreed that there is a good prospect for a strong, healthy club in this area which contains so many interesting species of rocks and gems.

Members of the museum committee are well pleased with the very favourable reports from the visiting public and they are sorry that it is not financially possible to keep the building in operation for another year. A joint meeting of the centennial committee and the museum committee resulted in the decision to close the museum at the end of this month. Thanksgiving week-end end.

ed the museum hours for opening but visitors may have a chance to look around by contacting one of the committee members, until the end of October.

There is an opportunity to enjoy fine programs at the Haliburton secondary school at an unbelievable low cost. There will be a presentation of four concerts beginning November 16 with excellent performances by first class entertainers. Tickets for the price of $18 can be purchased for $10 with the addition of 16 Half Back Wintario tickets. Can you imagine four great concerts for $10? For more information call in at your

The sun came out at last to smile on our Autumn Fest week-end and many people took advantage of the favourable weather to attend the flea market and visit the museum. Minor Hockey members were busy as ever as they took over the smorgasbord in the arena where, although the attendance was sparse in the afternoon, a large crowd gathered to enjoy the evening dance.

The children of Ted and Martha Deterling arranged a surprise party to celebrate the 40th wedding anniversary of their parents. Elizabeth came from Edmonton to join John, Pat, Phyllis and Jim and they welcomed many neighbours and friends who dropped in to offer congratulations to the happy couple. Ted and Martha Deterling arrived in Wilberforce shortly after their marriage and made a good life for themselves on their farm in South Wilberforce. They have participated in many community projects and have been an asset to the area. May they enjoy many more pleasant days in Wilberforce.

Good news for all you folks who have been unable to use the laundromat for the past few weeks: Dan Mathews reports that repairs have been made and the business is once more in operation.

The senior citizens hold card games in the Lions Community Hall each Tuesday evening. All are welcome to attend. There is a small admission fee. Lunch is served after the evening's entertainment, and a lot of friendly chit-chat ensues. Last week's winners in euchre were: ladies first, Mildren Faulkner, 74; Ladies second, Hilda Woodcock, 68; consolation, Barbara Kenneth, 31; Men's first, Ron Pearce, 71; Men's second, Alice Madill, 67; Men's consolation, Viola Dickson; most lone hands for women, Kay Clodd; most lone hands for men, Ron Pearce. Bridge winners were as follows: first, Bernie Grant, 4250; second, Alex Gagne, 4250; consolation, Laura Watson, 1260.

Sincere sympathy goes out to the family of the late Bill Schell who died suddenly last Saturday morning. Also, our sympathy to the Parker Jewell family who lost their young son aged 14, after a lengthy illness. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the bereaved ones. May God be their strength at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peyton of Manchester were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Fralick and Clara Schell last week.

Mrs. Ross Faulkner, Mrs. Annie Marles, Mr. Charlie Brohm of Miners Bay and Mrs. Bill White, Calgary, Alberta, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Marles, all motored to Belleville last Thursday where they visited Lloyd Faulkner, then later went on to Kempville where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brohm and family. Bill and Helen then took their visitors on a tour of Ottawa and area. Then it was off to the Brohm house, later then on to Belleville, arriving home late Monday. On Wednesday, the same travellers motored north to visit Denna Lake, enjoy the coloured scenery of Haliburton and dinner at Kossy Korner restaurant at Haliburton. On Thursday Denna spent the day with Esther Humphries at Verulam.

On Monday evening, the L.O.B.A. #1162 visited Cameron L.O.B.A. Our lodge member, Mrs. Frances Farrow received the Scarlett

Degree, Maple Leaf Lodge in the Cameron hall.

Mrs. Jean Callan has been a patient in Ross Memorial Hospital following surgery.

Mrs. Phyllis LeCraw remains in Ross Memorial Hospital. Remember Phyllis with a card or a flower to show you care.

Art Bartlett is back at I.G.A. after a vacation on the east coast. While in Truro, N.S. he learned that his sister had been murdered in Halifax, N.S. some two years ago. Wouldn't that kind of news shake anyone up?

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Basinger have moved from Malton to their home here, just north west of Joan and Chris Batty. Welcome as permanent residents, folks!

Last week I reported that bears had been seen in the Boshkung area. They are really getting bold around here and have been in several door yards.

The October meeting of the U.C.W. was held in the C.E. building with ladies from Maple Lake attending. The speaker was Dorothy Kinsmen, who gave an interesting talk on financial planning for women.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cowan are spending a few days at their cottage.

Relatives and friends of Ken Harrison of Campbell River were glad to see him and a friend and to learn that Shawn was making progress, if slowly.

We have a new bird feeder with several perches and have had so much pleasure watching the birds. We had one that we cannot find in the bird book. It was mostly white with black and white wings and a bit of black and red on its head, but was not a piliated woodpecker.

Mrs. Martin Davis was a guest of Mildred and Stanley Archer.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Cowan of Penetang are having a 25th anniversary and several of their relatives are surprising them to join in a celebration.

We were pleased that Muriel Brown of Brantford could get up for a few days.

Almost everyone will be having company or going some place for the holiday

Gooderham News

Cliff Inglis of Peterborough, who had just returned from a holiday in England.

Mrs. Mabel Hunter, with her daughter Sharon, spent last week-end with her son, Don, and his wife in Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Spencer of Belleville visited Allan's sister, Mrs. Grace Billings, last week. He found time for a fishing trip as well as to visit old friends in the area.

Last Friday, the teachers of Gooderham School, Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Müller, with the help of some mothers, prepared a Thanksgiving turkey dinner, with all the trimmings, for their pupils. Later in the afternoon the mothers were invited for a programme and to view the work of their children. A sincere "thank you" to these teachers for their efforts to make school a happy experience.

Twenty-one senior citizens met in the Community Centre last Wednesday. Garden vegetables, fruits and maple leaves, in all their autumn glory, were attractively arranged by Jean Frazer to carry out the theme of Thanksgiving. Seasonal poems were read by Gordon Barr and Jean Frazer. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Lancaster, of Peterborough, visitors of Marjorie and Walter Madill. Replying to his welcome, George told of attending a senior citizens' club in Peterborough where the membership was $1000. He congratulated the club on having such a fine and commodious place as the Centre for their meetings. All gathered around the piano for

with several perches and have had so much pleasure watching the birds. We had one that we cannot find in the bird book. It was mostly white with black and white wings and a bit of black and red on its head, but was not a piliated woodpecker.

Mrs. Martin Davis was a guest of Mildred and Stanley Archer.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Cowan of Penetang are having a 25th anniversary and several of their relatives are surprising them to join in a celebration.

We were pleased that Muriel Brown of Brantford could get up for a few days.

Almost everyone will be having company or going some place for the holiday

32. IN MEMORIAM

MACNEIL, In loving memory of my dear husband Bert who departed this life October 18, 1971.

I think of you in silence, I often speak your name. All I have is memories And your picture in a frame. My heart still aches in sadness, My silent tears still flow. For what it meant to lose you No one will ever know.

Sadly missed until we meet again, wife Reita. 32-P-14

SWITZER, In loving memory of a dear husband Reuben who passed away October 15, 1980.

God looked around His garden And found an empty space. He then looked down upon this earth And saw your tired face. He put his arms around you And lifted you to rest. God's garden must be beautiful. For He only takes the best. He knew that you were weary, And He knew you were in pain. He knew that you would never Be well on earth again.

Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Katy. 32-P-14

SWITZER, In loving memory of a dear father Reuben who passed away October 15, 1980.

Beautiful memories are wonderful things, They last till the longest day. They never wear out, they never get lost, And can never be given away. To some you may be forgotten, To others a part of the past, But to us who loved and lost you, Your memory will always last.

Sadly missed and always remembered by son Marvin, daughter-in-law Do-reen, and grand daughter Pamela. 32-P-14

In memory of my father, REUBEN SWITZER who passed away October 15, 1980.

Your not forgotten, dear father, Nor ever shall you be. As long as life and memory last We shall remember thee.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by son Earle remembered by son Earle, daughter-in-law Barbara and grandchildren, Roger, June, Debbie and Timothy. 32-P-14 her. At the age of 88 she went to visit the sick and helped make sandwiches at the Victor Scott Mission. Her life's motto was to help others, to be kind and loving. Heaven's gain is our loss.

The children's ball games ended when school commenced but the men are still playing and doing well. We hope the ladies were as successful in their games.

Sunday School has commenced again with an enrollment of 24. We are looking forward to a very busy and worthwhile year and warmly welcome all children and teachers who have enrolled.

Church is being held at St. John's, Irondale at 2 p.m. now with the exception of the Thanksgiving service on October 12 which was held in the evening and was a very special one, well worth the extra effort to attend.

Our thanks to our lay reader, Les Schell, for his help in providing us with a service, in Mr. Brook's absence.

If you love the beauty of the leaves as I do, perhaps you might like to press some for future use. The method is simple. Lay the leaves singly on several sheets of newspaper. Cover carefully with more sheets. Put the newspaper out flat under heavy books or under a mattress and leave two to three weeks. Your leaves will be flat and retain good colour and can be used to decorate mats, candles, lampshades, or many other things.

week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Bart Hildorff planned a trip to Elliott Lake.

Mary Bell has just returned from visiting her grandmother in New Liskeard.

We are expecting our daughter and family from Montreal. Then will be joined by Craig and his family and, as usual, will enjoy being together at Hart Lodge. The young folk enjoy the happy time before the dinner.

Now is the time to gather and preserve them in other ways, too. They can be waxed by placing them, singly, between 2 sheets of waxed paper - wax side towards the leaf, then rubbing with a hot iron. Sprays placed in a container of one part glycerine and two parts water for two weeks also retain their colour and do not curl but have a glossy appearance. String placed around the edge of the leaf and veins, then the whole covered with tinfoil and pressed down tightly, makes an interesting project for the young as do rubbings done with crayons.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rogers and guests are at their cottage.

Pupils and friends of Morfudd Harries will be pleased to know that she called on Sunday. She looks just the same, even if she is older than when we last saw her. She was asking about her old pupils and we were wishing we had time to catch up on the bygone days. She was a very popular teacher. She is now retired and lives in Toronto.

Pearson, daughter of Bill and Alice on being crowned Queen of the Bobcaygeon Fair. Louise was the recipient of many lovely gifts and when last seen was busily writing notes of thanks.

Lucky winner of the Kinmount Legion 50/50 draw, Saturday, October 3, was Sam Telford.

Germaine Brookes and her lovely friend, Alda, were pleasantly surprised to witness a fox hunt in progress on Crystal Lake Rd. recently. All the riders in proper attire and the hounds with tails straight up must have been on to something. The hunt was held at Pickford's Farm.

The Oktoberfest held at Galway Hall, hosted by the ratepayer's association was a gala affair but Angie Franzen, the convener wished that more could have attended.

Yvonne Dyer and Natasha had a busy week entertaining Yvonne's niece and family, from England.

Sincere sympathy to the King Woods family who reside in B.C. Their son, Richard, who was a student at Fenelon Falls Secondary School, died in a car accident recently.

Last week, due to a mixup, I wished a happy birthday to Doris Bartley on October 8. Her big day is February 8 but think of it this way "Doe" I wasn't making you older too soon but rather the other way round.

Bill Moss of Norland spent some time in Toronto last week attending a seminar. I was sorry to hear Ambrose Watson was feeling so poorly last Friday.

There were at least 150 names entered into the guest book from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, October 4, at the Kinmount Community Hall when Clara and Ambrose Watson celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They received some beautiful gifts and many cards and some are still coming in. All of their nine children were present for the big day, along with all but one of the grandchildren which totalled 25 plus 11 great grandchildren and then of course all of their families. Guests attended from Kalamazoo, Ont., Peterborough, Oshawa, Toronto, Calgary, Alberta, Kinmount and all surrounding area. Clara is sporting a beautiful diamond ring, a gift from her bridegroom of 50 years.
